WHEN WOMEN CAST THE BALLOT.

Oh, mother, please, mother, come home with me now.
The afternoon's slipping by fast;
You said you were coming right home from the polls.
As soon as your ballot was cast.
Poor father came in for his dinner at noon,
And not a mouthful could he find,
And the words that he said as he slammed the front door
Left a strong smell of sulphur behind.

A large photograph of the late Erastus Redman may be seen in the window of E. F. Redman's store. It is an excellent likeness of Ellsworth's late esteemed citizen.

A meeting of the official board of the Methodist church was held after the supper last Thursday evening. Everett Tinker was engaged for sexton for the ensuing year.

At a session of the municipal court last Saturday, Charles Sargent, of Ellsworth, was fined $3 and costs for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He was committed in default.

Evangelistic meetings, in which the Baptist and Free Will Baptist churches are uniting, are to be held every evening this week, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock, in the Free Will Baptist church. The meetings thus far have been well attended, and Miss Treworgy commends herself to all as an earnest and able speaker. Meetings next Sunday and through the following week.

Zabud Foster's house on Maple street has been sold, through C. H. Emery, to Coleman Davis.

On page 7 of this issue may be found a sermon preached on Nov. 4, by Rev. Cora S. Cochrane at the Unitarian church, on "Power of Love."

The supper given by the Unity club at the vestry of the Unitarian church last Wednesday evening proved a very pleasant affair, and a success financially as well as socially.

Eagle hook and ladder company are making preparations to celebrate New Year's eve with a masquerade ball and supper at Hancock hall. Monaghan's orchestra will furnish the music.

The many friends of Mrs. G. F. Newman are pleased to hear of her safe arrival home after an absence of six weeks in the homeopathic hospital at Boston, also to hear of her convalescence.

Judge Emery finished the term of court at Auburn last Saturday, and returned to Ellsworth, Saturday evening. He was accompanied by his son Harry, of Bowdoin college, who spent Sunday with his parents.

The burning of A. B. Haynes' camp at Great Pond was reported in THE AMERICAN three weeks ago. The fire was of incendiary origin. Suspicion points strongly to the identity of the incendiary, and efforts are being made to bring him to justice.

The Bucksport correspondent to the Bangor News dolefully whines: "Ellsworth is getting ready to build a third shoe factory and Bucksport has nary a one. Is the board of trade dead or only sleeping? Is there any board of trade in Bucksport, anyhow?"

The quarterly meeting of the Methodist church was held last Sunday. Sacraments of baptism and holy communion were administered. Eight members were received into the church. The pastor preached from the subject, "Christian Life and Example."

A large congregation listened intently to Rev. D. L. Yale's lecture on "The Moral Sentiment of a Community and How to Enforce It," at the Congregational church last Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Yale suggested the formation of a citizens' league. The sermon is published in full on page 3 of this issue.

It is a pleasure to state that Dr. F. E. Nye, formerly of Brewer and Bluehill, and well known here as an intelligent and successful trainer of trotting horses, has nearly recovered from his mental troubles and will soon be able to resume the practice of his profession. The item which has been going the rounds of the city, press announcing Dr. Nye's death at the insane hospital is entirely erroneous. —Bangor Commercial.

Last Saturday afternoon a gathering at the Congregational vestry listened with intense interest to a delightful talk by Miss Annie C. Emery on her recent visit to Greece. Miss Emery spoke without notes, and with ease. She talked for about an hour and held the undivided attention of her audience throughout. After the lecture a sale of confectionery and of useful and fancy articles was held. The proceeds were applied to missionary work.

On Saturday, Nov. 10, at the home of the groom at Wollaston Heights, Mass., at 4:30 p. m., Miss Melbie M. Pettengill of Ellsworth, daughter of the late Melville E. Pettengill, of Hancock, and Harvey D. Black, of Wollaston, formerly of Ellsworth, were united in marriage by the Rev. Preston Gurney. Only a few relatives were present. Many useful and ornamental presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Black will reside at No. 12 Safford street, Wollaston Heights, Mass.

J. P. Gould, of this city, is one of the most enthusiastic admirers of Green Lake, and has for years been a regular sojourner at that resort, where he has a very comfortable cottage. He says the cottagers have full confidence in Supt. Robinson of the Green Lake fish hatchery, and that the only trouble has been that for a time the gill net used at the hatchery had meshes so large as to result in killing the fish. Mr. Gould is desirous that the stream between Green Lake and Phillips Lake be cleared of obstructions so that the fish can pass into the latter lake, and believes if such improvements were inaugurated, it would be beneficial all around. —Bangor Commercial.

The schooner "Light of the East," of this city, which went ashore at Dennisport, Cape Cod, in the gale a month ago, has not yet been raised. A great portion of the cargo has been removed and the vessel is lighter. In the gale of a week ago she pounded badly and it was thought she was going to pieces. As it was the hull was badly damaged and the stern was washed away. It was decided to abandon the wreck, and the wrecking company removed masts and spars. On Tuesday, however, word was received here that it was thought there was still a possibility of saving the hull, and the wrecking company has resumed operations.

Rev. T. F. Butler, late of St. Joseph's R. C. church, this city, preached his first sermon as pastor of St. Joseph's church, Lewiston, Sunday. He was warmly welcomed by a large congregation. In the course of his remarks he said:

"My friends and parishioners; as you know, I begin my services as your pastor to-day. I left a people whose affections I seemed to have gained and for whom I had a deep and abiding love in my own heart. It was not an easy parting, or it would not have been, had it not been for the best as ordered by the church. If I see that among you I can do no good I shall very gladly go back to those whom I am sure I have assisted along the rough road of life somewhat."

A special meeting of the board of aldermen was held Monday evening to discuss the conditions of the highways. Mayor Higgins presided. Aldermen present were Messrs. Means, Eldridge and Nealley. Road Commissioner Holmes was also present. He stated that he believed he had fulfilled all the requirements of the contract. The aldermen present held that he had not. Somewhat spirited discussion followed. The aldermen desired to have a board of arbitration appointed as provided in the contract. Contractor Holmes said he thought a board of arbitration was unnecessary. The meeting finally adjourned without definite action.

Recent visitors to the city were: J. Lawler, Machias; A. S. Penney, Mariaville; C. H. Abbott, R. W. Young, Hancock; R. M. Gordon, George C. Gordon, West Sullivan; Charles Billings, H. P. Hackley, John Snow, Bluehill; William S. Newman and wife, W. C. Moore, Southwest Harbor; F. L. Hadley, M. Franklin, J. E. Savage and wife, A. L. Morgan, Mrs. Capt. Raymond, L. V. Paige, E. S. Chase, C. B. Pineo, Fred P. Sargent, E. Higgins, Mrs. Ellis, Bar Harbor; G. E. Simpson, Sullivan; George L. Sellers, J. M. Hutchins, Penobscot; J. J. Bridges, A. G. Blake, Brookline; D. F. Pierce, Atlantic; E. M. Robinson, Green Lake; Jasper Kane, Surry; P. W. Richardson, Tremont; L. G. Hodgkins, Mrs. H. D. Roberts, Northport Harbor.

A number of the young people of Ellsworth have organized a club for social purposes. It is known as the XIV club. The first social event to be given under the auspices of the club will be a concert and ball to take place at Hancock hall, Friday evening, Nov. 23. Music will be furnished by Monaghan's orchestra of six pieces. The members of the club are as follows: Misses Rubie B. McGown, Ethel M. Giles, Persis Hagerthy, Florence G. Sweet, Carrie Cunningham, Mae B. Friend, Susie Mason, Florence Greenan, Messrs. Elmer F. Murch, Carlton R. Thomas, Harry C. Mason, Frederick W. Rollins, John U. Doyle, and Bernard S. Jellison. As this is the club's first social undertaking, the members will make every effort to make the affair one of the most successful of the season, socially.

Aldermen Maddocks, Eldridge and Means, the committee appointed to view the premises and act on the petition of residents of School street to lower the grade of that street, have viewed the street and granted the petition, the only stipulation being that the bed of the street, after grading, must be in as good condition as at present. The street will be graded from the corner of Oak street to a point near the house of David Friend. This will lower the crown of the hill, and be an improvement to the street. The work will be done without expense to the city. The committee on streets has not yet acted on the petition for the extension of Bay View street, presented at the last regular meeting of the board.

ELLSWORTH FALLS.

John Maddocks is putting an ell on his house. The five-saw-dam bridge has been recently partly replanked.

Emma Harriman, who has been at her home in Orlando for a while, has returned.

Mrs. Fannie Stevens, of Bangor, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. P. H. Conley. She returned Monday.

H. A. B. Stanley returned Monday evening for a day or two from Holden, where he has been getting ready for the manufacture of spool wood this winter. He has rented Egery's mill and expects to do quite a business.

The following definition given by a six-year-old boy in the Sunday school in the Flood district, has the element of originality at least: "What is a tabernacle?" asked the teacher. "A merry-go-round," promptly replied Fred.

The lot situated on the west side of the river and south of the road leading from the five-saw-dam bridge, belonging to the Seth Tisdale estate, and for many years occupied by William Jordan, has been purchased by Charles J. Treworgy. Also what has been known as the Jellison lot, on the west bank a little below Brimmer's bridge, and belonging to the same estate, has been purchased by Lewis Flood and Almon Johnson.

AGNES A. LORD,
Treasurer.

Following is the report of the benevolent committee of the society for the year ending Oct. 31, 1894:

At the close of this current year we find the names of sixty-two families on our visiting list, thirty of them having been added during the year.

Within the year sixty-three applications for aid have been answered, and in nearly all cases we have had the means at hand to relieve immediate distress. In every case the family applying has been visited by a member of the committee or has brought, as reference, the name of some responsible person who has been seen and has given satisfactory testimony.

The depression in business, throwing many men out of employment, and the unusually severe winter of 1893-94, made more than a usual amount of destitution among the poor of our city, and the benevolent committee realizes that it is through the kindness of the citizens in answering each appeal they have made that they have been able to do more extensive work than ever before, and with more satisfactory results.

MARY ANN GREELY,
Chairman.

THE READING ROOM belongs to the public. It is supported by the public for the benefit of the public, and so it is most natural that the public frequently make inquiries concerning its patronage.

Every week visitors from out of town call upon us, and during one of the recent rainy days from twenty to thirty boys and girls passed the afternoon here among the books and magazines.

Don't forget the concert by the "Boston Stars" this (Thursday) evening. It is sure to be one of the greatest treats of the season.

In this column next week there will appear a notice of the Christmas mission.

Vesper Service.

There will be a vesper service at the Unitarian church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The regular choir will be assisted by E. F. Redman, tenor; Mrs. E. F. Redman, soprano; Mrs. Flora Lewis, alto; F. W. Rollins, bass.

The following is the programme:
Voluntary—"H. Balm," "Trovatore," Organ and Piano.

Anthem—"Judith," (Festival), H. P. Sawyer, Scripture Reading.

Anthem—"O That I Had Wings Like a Dove," J. Moore Smeiton.

Hymn.
Prayer.
Response—"The Lord is My Shepherd!" Koechel.

Remarks.
Hymn.
Benediction.

Voluntary—"Parigi O Cara Traviata," Organ and Piano.

Coming Events.

Firemen's masquerade ball, Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 28. Reserved seat tickets on sale at Woodward Bros'.

Lovett's Boston Stars will appear at Hancock hall this (Thursday) evening, under the auspices of the King's Daughters society. The artists who will appear are Miss Marion Osgood, violinist; Miss Clara G. Warner, ballad singer; Miss Bertha Brewer, reader and accompanist; Frank G. Reynolds, humorous singer.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The senior class has chosen crimson and silver as the class colors.

In the list of editors published last week one was left out. Miss Maude A. Scott, '96, is the exchange editor.

The Junior's held a class meeting last Thursday after school, and made election of officers as follows: President, C. E. Bellatty; vice-president, Maude A. Scott; secretary, Grace M. Grindle; treasurer, George E. Frazier.

Last Friday was the last afternoon that rhetorical will be held at the school. The mock trial will take place next Friday. A report of this trial will appear in next week's AMERICAN.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON EXERCISES.

The exercises last Friday afternoon were carried out with the usual success, although the declamations in some cases might have been better. The music furnished was good. The declamation of Harry S. Jones, our dramatic speaker, in his "Supposed Speech of Regulus," brought down the house.

Following is the programme:

Piano Solo		Miss Lora Parsons.
Declamations.
"Daylight and Moonlight".....		Harry Rowe

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

For the Week Beginning Nov. 18. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Some applications of the golden rule.

The "golden rule," as it is commonly called, was a principle of action that Christ laid down for man in the sermon on the mount. It is found in Math. vii, 12, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." It is a good practical principle, rather than a rule. It is reasonable and just that we should treat others as we want them to treat us. The common principle is to treat others as they treat us, but it is easy to see that this is a false principle and an unworthy one. But while this principle is a good practical one it is not the highest that should animate us in our dealings with one another. It is true it would result in great good if it were universally practiced, and yet it is not a particularly lofty principle of action. It is a good rule, but not the best motive. Christ did not mean it to be. This was his first sermon, and all he could do was to lay down some ethical rules, and the great teachings of distinctive Christianity were yet to follow. In Luke's account of the sermon on the mount the golden rule is not given in so many words, but some practical applications are given, and it is to these that our attention is directed.

1. "Love your enemies. Do good to them that hate you." This is the first application Luke makes of this principle, and we can see that it is not an easy thing to do. It is easy to love our friends, but not to love our enemies, and yet if we follow out the golden rule we would do it, for we want all men to love us, and should therefore love all men. We want all to do good to us, and therefore it follows that we should do good to all men.

2. "Bless them that curse you, and pray for them that despitefully use you." (verse 28). This is the same principle as to our words, the former being the golden rule in the heart. It is to bless those who curse us, to pray for the blessing of God upon them and to speak kindly of them to men, no matter how they may abuse us. It is harder to do than the other. There may be inward good feeling, but it is harder to carry it into practical effect, and yet it should be done. We should speak kindly both to God and man of all men.

3. The same rule is applied also to the actions of life and all of them. We are to be benevolent, to be merciful, to be slow in judging, to forgive and in all things to do as we would be done by. But there is only one way to do it, and that is to have the spirit of Christ in the heart. He alone did it perfectly, and to carry it out we must have the same spirit.

Bible Readings.—Deut. xv, 7-10; Prov. xxi, 26; xxv, 1; Ps. xxxvii, 26; Math. vi, 39, 44-46; vii, 12; Luke xxiii, 34; Acts vii, 60; Rom. xii, 10-20; I Cor. ix, 12; xvi, 1; II Cor. ix, 1, 13; I Pet. i, 22; ii, 23.

Be Faithful to Your Pledge.

If you are disposed to regard your pledge as an Endeavor as a burden, you should consider that you have pledged yourself to do only what you were constrained to acknowledge that you ought to do. If there is any question in your mind touching your duty as it is set forth in the pledge, that should have been considered and settled before you assumed the obligations of an Endeavor. Such a question might be a reason for withdrawing from the society, but cannot justify your neglect while you remain an Endeavor. A Christian you can consistently remain an Endeavor only while you are faithful to your pledge.—Selected.

Endeavor Work in Manitoba.

The Methodist Endeavorers of Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, have undertaken a work which will make their church a most formidable rival of all those places of evil resort which are open every night of the week. They intend to add to the Sunday school library many excellent and standard books and keep it open during the evenings of the week, members of the Sunday school and the Christian Endeavor society always being present to welcome callers and make them feel at home.

In the Lord's Service.

Here I am, Lord. Send me, send me to the ends of the earth; send me to the rough and savage pagans of the wilderness; send me from all that is called comfort in the earth; send me even to death itself, if it be but in Thy service and to promote Thy kingdom.—David Brainerd.

How Christian Endeavor Grows.

At the Cleveland convention the total enrollment of Christian Endeavor societies in the world was 33,679. The enrollment Oct. 6 was 35,079, a remarkable net increase in three months.—Secretary Baer's Report.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR BRIEFS.

The Galesburg (Ills.) District union awards each year a banner to the society that does the best all around work during the year.

Of the 25 Disciples' churches in the maritime provinces, ten already have Christian Endeavor societies, six having been organized this last year.

The Chinese national convention was truly cosmopolitan. It included American, English, Scotch, German, Japanese and Chinese delegates.

At the annual Christian conference held at Petersham, New South Wales, by the Petersham and District Ministerial association the "interval meeting," held just before the evening service of the first day, was devoted to a Christian Endeavor rally, led by Rev. Alexander Miller, president of the colonial union.

Joplin (Mo.) union has doubled its number of societies since June 1, having organized three new ones in the city and one in an adjoining town.

GEOLOGY OF ROADS.

Decayed Stone Does Not Cement and is Poor Material for Road Metal.

Practical information for the guidance of all interested in the good roads movement is embodied in an important report of the United States geological survey on the geology of the common roads of the United States, prepared by Geologist N. S. Shaler. The report outlines the history of American roads, discusses the geological relations of common roads and the geological condition of road materials and reviews the sources of supply of road stones.

"With the invention of macadam," says Professor Shaler, "a new path in road construction was opened. The peculiar advantage arising from his discovery is that roads can be constructed at a relatively small expense as compared with pavements made of blocks, and the work can be done in many regions where suitable paving blocks cannot be obtained. If a mass of broken stones is allowed to lie with the fragments resting on each other, no evident trace of cementation takes place, but if the materials be repeatedly traversed by heavy wheels or a roller of great weight then as soon as it is wet the cementation sets in.

"This fixing of the bits of stone together has been attributed to the interlocking of their rough surfaces when they are driven together. The effect, however, is due mainly to the fact that the friction of bit on bit produces by the grinding action a sufficient amount of powdered rock to form the required cement. The binding strength of the cement exists in some measure with all the species of stone.

"No decayed stone retains the capacity of cementation when powdered, though in some few cases where material is charged with iron oxides it may undergo a certain binding, and no ordinary flinty gravels free from iron oxides can be made to form a firm roadbed. Pebbles, even though they cannot be made to cement in their natural state, will do so when broken into bits. Thus the macadam invention can be applied in three ways—breaking stone which is taken from the quarry, using stone broken by natural processes and which is not decayed, and by rebreaking pebbles which in their natural state cannot be made to unite by the cementing processes.

"The volcanic rocks, the dyke stones and large crystalline masses and the superficial lavas are the best fitted for road-making, and of these the material known as basalt is much the best. The lavas which have cooled in fissures are stronger than those found on the earth's surface.

"Almost as important as the character of the road surface is the grade, and experience shows that, except under peculiar conditions, it is very unprofitable to build roads having five feet of fall in each 100 feet of length."

In general, the report concludes: "The greater part of the United States is characterized by great seasonal variations and these climatic features which most affect the conditions of carriage roads. There is prevailing an alternation of heavy rainfall and protracted drought. During rain periods the roads are subjected to a deep penetration of water and serious washings. In the dry season the upper surface becomes powdery, and these conditions make high grade roads peculiarly necessary and make their maintenance costly."—Philadelphia Press.

Governor Levi K. Fuller of Vermont.

Governor Levi K. Fuller of Vermont has long been known as an active factor in the good roads movement, and when the good roads conference was called to order at Asbury Park last July the governor was nominated for chairman by half the delegates and his nomination seconded by the other half, so there was hardly any need for a vote. At the close of the proceedings a central committee was elected to take in hand the matter of future conferences, and very naturally all hands wanted Governor Fuller to be chairman of that committee, and it was so ordered. The other two members of the committee are General Roy Stone, United States special agent and engineer for road inquiry and department of agriculture, and Colonel E. H. Thayer of Clinton, Ia.

Stone Roads Are the Cheapest.

Roads with a broken stone foundation, or improved roads such as are becoming common in New Jersey, are never very dusty, and have a hard, smooth surface in the wettest weather. The old dirt road is as much out of date in progressive country districts as the ancient cobblestone is in a moderate city. Both are a survival from a period of comparative poverty and ignorance, when of necessity roads must be cheap, and it was not understood that the cheapest roads were usually the dearest in the end, and that the farmer, who used the country most, suffered the most because of their very poor quality.—Selected.

How to Keep the Road Dry.

If the road is shaped up right, and the loose stones off, and iron sluice pipe set for proper drainage, and the roadbed rolled down hard with an ordinary farm roller, the water will run off from instead of soaking into the road, and then it is dry and good. Surprising what a few iron sluice pipes and a day's work with a farm roller will do.

Got your road shaped up and iron sluice pipe set so a rider or driver never knows where a sluice is, roll it down, and you have a hard, dry road that is a thing of beauty and a joy forever at an expense that is nearly nil.—Old Roadmaster.

A logical connection exists in the statement that "there are more idiots, more criminals and more insane in California than in any other state in proportion to population." There are 14,000 saloons, one to every eighty-six of the population, and one saloon to every nineteen voters; also 2,700 criminals in the two state prisons; 4,700 insane in the five state asylums.

The annual liquor bill of the United States is over one-fifth of all our outgo, and between a fifth and a sixth of all we produce.

The legislature of New South Wales, by an overwhelming majority, has passed a resolution in favor of extending the franchise to women.

Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, correspondent of the National W. T. C. H., passed on the evening of the 25th, ult., from the midst of superabundant labors to eternal rest and reward. On Tuesday she was in her usual good health and spirits; in the evening attended a lecture. She slept well that night until 3 o'clock, when she awoke with a chill, and passed soon into a comatose state, from which she passed on Thursday evening into the life of heaven. Mrs. Woodbridge was also secretary of the World's W. T. C. H., and her loss from the work of both organizations is inestimable.

The Australian Brewers' Journal makes lamentation as follows: "The teetotalers are very active just now all over the colonies, and our lot generally is not a bed of roses. In New Zealand, as all are aware, women now have votes, and the general election just over has sent a lot of faddists to Parliament in that colony who will make it unpleasant for the liquor trade, which will have to fight for its existence. The women franchise people will, no doubt, make a great effort to introduce this into other colonies, but it is to be hoped they will not succeed."

THE CENTURY
IN 1895.

Taking advantage of the general revival of interest in the great Emperor, THE CENTURY will print during 1895

A NEW LIFE OF
NAPOLEON,
Magnificently Illustrated.

THE CENTURY is famous for its great historical serials, and never in its history has a greater one been projected than this new "Life of Napoleon," written by Prof. William M. Sloane, of Princeton, who has spent many years in preparation for his work. This far no biography of "the man of destiny" has appeared in either English or French that is free from rancor and attentive to the laws of historical criticism. The CENTURY has secured IT—THE GREAT, ALL ROUND, COMPLETE AND INTERESTING HISTORY OF THE life of one of the most marvelous of men. No matter how much you already know of Napoleon, you will want to read this—here is the concentration of all the lives and memoirs. THE ILLUSTRATIONS WILL BE MAGNIFICENT—the wealth of THE CENTURY's art department will be lavished upon them. Two members of the staff have just returned from Paris, where they have been securing all that is best of Napoleonic material. New portraits will be printed, great historical paintings reproduced, and Castiglione and other modern artists have drawn anew some of the great scenes of Napoleon's life for this history. In addition to this there will be

A NEW NOVEL BY
MARION CRAWFORD.

The title is "CASA BRACCO," and it is a romantic story of Italy, full of human passion and exciting episode.

A NEW NOVEL BY

will be published during the year. It is called "AN ERRANT WOODMAN," and is a tale of wandering (and love) among new scenes of travel in Northern Africa and Southern Spain.

OTHER FEATURES

will be several familiar papers on "WASHINGTON IN LINCOLN'S TIME," by Noah Brooks, who was on terms of unusual intimacy with the President; "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," by FRANKLIN P. MURPHY, by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Joseph Pennell. Many more serials will be announced later.

RUDYARD KIPLING

is the story of a little lad from the streets of Paris (not of good family), who renders a service to Napoleon, and becomes one of his pages and finally an aide. He is with him at the most critical times of his life—at the battle of Eylau, in the glories of the life at Fontenoy, and finally at Waterloo. The story glows with patriotism, and is a truthful and accurate account based upon the best authorities, and verified by the latest information of the life of "the man of destiny." It is really a delightful story-history of Napoleon.

WEST POINT

will receive attention, Lieutenant Putnam writing of cadet life at the military academy, while Ensign Elliott, of the flag ship "Albatross," will describe the experiences of our navy cadets on the modern ships of war.

INSPIRING TALES
FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT will write a series to be called "HERO TALES FROM AMERICAN HISTORY," recounting famous deeds of heroism about which young people ought to know. Prof. BRANDER MATTHEWS will include in his entertaining papers on "THE GREAT AMERICAN AUTHORS," accounts of the lives of Bryant, Emerson, Longfellow, Hawthorne, Whitier, Poe and Lowell. STORIES OF FAMOUS HOMES in history and in the past—Bacon's, Napoleon's and Sheridan's houses, etc.—will be told by James Baldwin, author of "STORIES FROM THE NORTHERN MYTHS," "CITY FIRE DEPARTMENTS" will be treated, and there will be two or three papers on THE BOYS' BRIGADE. THE SERIAL STORIES are many. One called "GIRLS AND THE WONDERFUL FAIRY" recounts the marvellous adventures of a modern boy who became the accidental purchaser of Aladdin's lamp and summoned the genii while cleaning it. A delightful story of college girls, "THE THREE PRINCESSES," will appeal to every girl, and "TIDY AND CAROLINE," James O'Neil's serial of new school life, will be read by every girl. A serial story by FRANCES COURTNEY BAYLOR is one of the features.

PRICE OF ST. NICHOLAS is 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year. New subscribers should begin with November, the first issue of the year. Subscribe through dealers, or remit by check, draft, or money order to

A LECTURE.

[Delivered at the people's service of the Congregational church, Ellsworth, Sunday evening, Nov. 11, 1894, by the pastor, Rev. D. L. Yale.]

THE MORAL SENTIMENT OF A COMMUNITY, AND HOW TO ENFORCE IT.

Let us clear the way into our subject to-night by a few definitions and distinctions.

Sentiment in its best forms is nothing more than settled opinions or principles. And it is moral whenever it relates to duties, or obligations to God, or society, or self.

The moral sentiment of a community, consists really of the sum of the moral sentiment of its individuals. That is, it is the sum of all the moral opinions and principles held by the people. The real moral sentiment of a community is seldom identical with what is called its public sentiment, which is partial and superficial. The real moral sentiment of any community is vastly more than is evident to any except the most thoughtful, careful observer. I want to mark this distinction: That what is recognized as the public moral sentiment of a community is almost always partial, superficial, and caused by a few leading spirits. The real moral sentiment being simply the sum of that held by the people considered as individuals, which is not apparent because not expressed.

The moral character of a community is fashioned by the moral sentiment in action. That is, opinion and principle plus will. To illustrate, suppose a community of 100 persons, the moral sentiment of which on gambling is ninety against ten for. The character of that community depends not only on its moral sentiment but its will. If the ten insist on gambling publicly, and the ninety do not move against it, the character of the community is a gambling character. Mathematically considered it stands thus: Moral sentiment 10 for, 90 against. But the will of the ten is so much more than the will of the ninety that the sum total of sentiment and will places the sum of character in favor of gambling. And the community may be designated as gambling in character because the gambling character-sentiment plus will-actually predominates. This explains what I mean by saying that the moral character of a community is fashioned by moral sentiment in action.

The reputation of a community is very similar to its character. It is simply what men say and think about it. The estimate which is formed of it. The character attributed to it. It is similar to character because it is the reputation of sentiment in action. It does not always correspond to the actual character because the observation may be faulty, or prejudice may influence the conclusion. I am sure that all of us recognize the fact that

THE MORAL SENTIMENT OF A COMMUNITY IS A MOST IMPORTANT THING.

But I am confident that we do not begin to understand how important it is, or what place it holds in civilized society. Our definition has shown its fundamental place in the character of a community. As it is increased it becomes capital for the character of the community. The teacher and the preacher add to it. He who decreases it is an enemy of the community as much as the robber who plunders the bank. Nothing else can take its place. It has been put by God in its position, and shall stay there while the world endures. The moral sentiment of a community is the foundation of the character of the community. This includes, of course, the business dealings which are based on duties and obligations to other business men and to society. Business dealings are carried on according to moral or immoral sentiment. In view of its fundamental position in character, the importance of moral sentiment can hardly be over-estimated.

The same is true of moral sentiment when considered in relation to the reputation of a community, for reputation is nothing more than character as seen and estimated and talked about. This is a dollar invested, or a home to continue, or a child to leave in any community. The character and reputation of the community bear directly on his dollar and his home and his child. Outsiders invest in a community according to its character. Desirable money capital is slow to come to communities that lack an increasing reputation and character capital. While, on the other hand, a community with a character that is sterling, attracts desirable money capital from all sides. But not less in importance is the relation moral sentiment sustains to the enforcement of law. Reformers ought to recognize this more than they do. The strength of law is moral sentiment. There may be here and there a community where there are a few men of such

PALE, THIN AND EMACIATED PEOPLE.

The country is full of them. They do not know what it is to feel well, like other folks. Medicines of all kinds have been tried without good results. Cod Liver Oil and the preparations of Malt have all failed. What is the reason? These emaciated people cannot digest starchy foods. The fat of the body is produced with bread, potatoes and other starchy food. If they will eat food that is artificially digested, they will grow fat, strong, plump and robust. They will commence gaining flesh at once. This Flesh-Forming Food is called PASKOLA. You can buy it at any drug store. S. D. WIGGIN, Ellsworth, Me.

position and ability that they can take the place of moral sentiment in the enforcement of law, but such cases are rare, and denotable when they occur. God has gifted the mass of mankind with common-sense, which is a partial name for moral sentiment. Law must rely on this bulk for its defence. The voice of the people is not the voice of God. But divine wisdom is revealed in the fact that, with the mass of honest, true men and women, rather than more brilliant but eccentric individuals, God has placed the strength of the law. Just as he gives to the sun the immense strength necessary to operate the laws of gravitation, rather than to some brilliant meteor that flashes for an instant along the heavens and is gone.

We have had numerous examples in our own State, and in sister states, of the pulpit and the press and the reformers of every class, attacking the officials of the community and putting them to confusion and rout for not enforcing certain laws.

There may be in some places corrupt judges and police captains and municipal judges. My knowledge of human nature, and of the strength of temptation, tells me that there probably are such. But the same knowledge also tells me that the majority of mayors and police captains and municipal judges are honest men and good citizens. At any rate, the way to enforce law is not to attack the mayor and his brother officers. If they are corrupt, then attack them for their corruption. But do not speak hard words against honest men because they do not enforce every law on our statute books.

The laws of Maine do not have the character scripture ascribes to the laws of the Medes and Persians. They must be applied with common sense. Some are obsolete, and have not been enforced for years in any community. Some are experimental, and must be experimented with. Sometimes the laws of our common humanity conflict with the laws of our State and the strife must be adjusted. Some citizens think a mayor's duties are all summed up in enforcing every ordinance of his city and every law of his State in his city. Some persons think that a police captain is a machine to cause every violator of every law to be instantly incarcerated. Some persons think that every judge upon the bench can treat law and the humanity brought before him as a problem in Euclid.

These officials could do this if State law were divine, and eternally just because divine. But State law is human, and city ordinance is human, and both require human common-sense in applying them to humanity, because everything human is imperfect and liable to be particularly unjust.

I do not wish these words to lessen your respect for law. A sad need of our day is more respect for law, but the way to improve both law and respect for it is not to attack honest guardians of the law. The strength of the law is not in our police departments or our judiciary, but in the sentiment of our people. Provide in any community a majority moral sentiment for enforcing a law, and a majority will to enforce the law, and he would be a daring mayor or policeman or judge who would disobey its commands.

But in any community without a strong moral sentiment and will for enforcing a law, an official would be doing an unwelcome and a very temporary thing to enforce it.

A law written on our statute books is dead unless it has inscribed itself upon the moral sentiment of the community. But once written there it must be obeyed.

I do not wish to take issue with any reformer, but I do believe that it is a mistake to write laws upon our statute books before they are written in the moral sentiment of our people. Law may be forced through under sudden feeling or by special pressure, without writing itself in the moral sentiment of the people, but all such laws prove a source of trouble, before they are written in the moral sentiment of our people. Law may be forced through under sudden feeling or by special pressure, without writing itself in the moral sentiment of the people, but all such laws prove a source of trouble, before they are written in the moral sentiment of our people. Law may be forced through under sudden feeling or by special pressure, without writing itself in the moral sentiment of the people, but all such laws prove a source of trouble, before they are written in the moral sentiment of our people.

We must not delay longer on this. I have not room to discuss the last point. The statements are not complete for the truth that moral sentiment and nothing else, person or thing, is the natural, lasting strength of the law. Am I not right, then, in the position I maintain that moral sentiment is a very important thing?

Because of its relation to the character of the community, and to the reputation of the community, and to the laws of the community, is not moral sentiment a very important thing?

THE MORAL SENTIMENT OF ELLSWORTH.

My position as pastor of this church gives me time and unusual advantage for this. It may be that you who have been longer here than I may not agree with me; if so, I only ask you to consider carefully my words before rejecting them.

From my study of the moral sentiment of our city I conclude that there is present far more than our neighbors give us credit for. On almost every moral question I claim that an overwhelming majority of our people favor the side of morality. Of this I have not a shadow of a doubt.

In respect to gambling, selling of liquor on tobacco to minors, the present condition of the liquor interest, Sabbath breaking, and many other immoralities, I am convinced, after careful investigation and thought, that fully 90 per cent. of our people have a good, healthy, moral sentiment.

You remember that I said in the beginning that the character of a community is fashioned by the moral sentiment in action. The weak point of the character of our community is not its moral sentiment but its lack of action.

There are reasons for this. One is that a certain number are indifferent in respect to action, constitutionally quiet. Their moral sentiment is sound enough, but they will not set it in motion. They are not inclined to set much of anything in motion. This class is a small one. Another reason is that men fear to take action. Our community is not large, and is subject to the prejudices and passions of small communities. Our business men do business on such close margins that they hesitate to offend any possible customer. And our community has not yet learned, though it is learning, that to further its own interest it must spend its money with tradesmen who are the best citizens, rather than with those who, because of wrong business methods, can cut certain prices.

A third reason is that in our community, as in most of its size, there are parties or factions among those who do not fear to take action. It is possible that we have action enough provided all would act at once and in harmony; but instead, there are sporadic movements here and there, instead of quiet, systematic, united effort.

Without carrying our analysis further, it seems to me that Ellsworth, in common with every community in our State, needs three things: First—Just the work we are doing in our churches, our schools and other organizations, to increase and educate the moral sentiment. And I am glad to pay a well-deserved tribute to our public school officers and teachers, which I make not from hearsay but from personal observation, by saying that they are doing a noble work in increasing and educating moral sentiment. I find that many of our teachers have risen above the old conception of the pedagogy with his three R's, and are working quietly and hopefully for the characters, the large, rounded characters of their scholars. And they are doing this without pay, with few thanks, because people do not realize their work, but they do it taking both pay and thanks from the results they see month by month appearing in the characters of their scholars.

I will not enumerate other agencies for increasing and educating moral sentiment. They are those we have supported for years. We get dissatisfied sometimes with them and long for something new, but they, the church and school, with that more important agency, the home—the true home, the complete home, the loving, developing, sympathetic and God-fearing home—they are the creators and feeders of moral sentiment on which humanity must always rely, and to which men must give constant and thoughtful support. After we have made these sources as perfect as possible, we need in the second place to unite the moral sentiment of our city, so that it may act as a unit—so that all parts may adhere in firm union for one purpose, just as the particles of metal placed in the electric crucible are united by one current into one solid mass.

In the third place, we need here in Ellsworth, action of moral sentiment. There is not a community in Maine but needs it. Action; and I venture to say that there is not a community in our State that does not contain moral sentiment enough to drive forth any kind of lawlessness and vice, if it would only act with the vigor displayed by immoral sentiment.

We have now considered two points of our lecture. 1st. That the moral sentiment of a community is a very important thing. 2d. We have examined the moral sentiment of Ellsworth and hinted at its needs.

Before taking up our conclusion let me call your attention to a few facts that have occurred to you all but which bear on our theme.

The past year has witnessed in our cities large and small, from Eastport to San Francisco, attempts at municipal reform. The old world has felt the same movement. The movements at first were individual or confined to a few, but they promise things to come.

Great movements in human society have illustrative analogies in nature.

In the spring time, when we see the birds coming singly or in pairs up from the sunny South, we know that behind them are coming the multitudes of birds that make our meadows and fields and woodlands happy with their songs.

When the great mountain sends up now and then its puffs of sulphurous smoke, it warns the dwellers on its side that there is tumult below, and they prepare to escape the greater eruptions which are sure to follow.

I believe that the Kingdom of God is increasing in the earth and that these movements in our cities mark the beginning of a new era.

The time is nearly past when ten can defy ninety. The ninety are awaking and the ten must change their habits.

Moral sentiment, the mighty strength of law, is awaking from its drowsiness, and is realizing its giant strength, and soon the evil doers throughout the world shall hear its voice cry. Thou shalt not. The time is coming soon when the ninety shall say to the ten who sell tobacco and liquor to half grown boys: Thou shalt not.

The time is coming when the ninety honest business men shall say to the ten dishonest business men who defy the law: Thou shalt not.

The time is coming when the ninety who oppose gambling will say to those who injure character by that vice: Thou shalt not.

The time is coming when the ninety true citizens, shall say to the ten false citizens: Thou shalt change.

And the puny ten, looking at the giant ninety, shall stop without a question or a blow.

I believe that in every city of our land, the moral sentiment is the giant, and the immoral sentiment, the dwarf.

I believe the time is near at hand when moral sentiment shall awake to its giant strength, and shall put the dwarf into "durance vile until he shall repent."

I believe that God looks down in pity upon the giant of moral sentiment that lives in the world to-day and suffers so much from the dwarf of immoral sentiment. But I also believe that some day angels will sing a triumphal song in honor of the rousing up and victory of moral sentiment upon the earth. And the words of that triumphal song may well be the Christian hymn:

"The morning light is breaking,
The darkness disappears,
The sun of earth is waking
To potential tears.
Each breeze that sweeps the ocean
Brings tidings from afar,
Of nations in commotion;
Prepared for Zion's war."

A task of the immediate future is to arouse and unite, and set in motion, the moral sentiment of the world; to arouse and unite and set in motion, or, figuratively speaking, to awake the drowsy giant, and send him to destroy his puny enemy.

HOW SHALL IT BE ACCOMPLISHED?
You and I must decide it for Ellsworth, and others will decide it for Portland, Boston, New York, Chicago and London. How can the ninety in Ellsworth be aroused and united, and set in motion? How can our giant of moral sentiment be awakened and set against his puny foe?

My answer will be brief and only suggestive at this time.

I believe God has committed the decision of important movements to the people—the mass of the people. I am glad it is so. Society is safer in the keeping of the mass, with its conservatism and common-sense, than in the keeping of a few enthusiasts or theorists. And so I believe most fully in the old New England custom of a meeting of all citizens together, as occasion and necessity may require, and in a free discussion and in a decision by the majority, and in the majority rule.

A plan that would work easily might be a Citizens League, any citizen of our community becoming a member by payment of a small sum. A request for a meeting for discussing any matter, signed by a fixed proportion of the members and presented to the president of the league, would insure the calling of the league together for a careful discussion of the subject, and after a discussion a vote would be taken, which would represent the moral sentiment of the voters of the community.

This I believe to be the simplest, most natural way of uniting and setting in action the moral sentiment of our community. And I believe that this organization, after a very few operations, would prove a salutary check on wrong business methods, or any of the various forms of wickedness that exist to-day, and which injure the character and reputation of our city.

Ellsworth can be made a city that shall be marked for righteousness throughout our county and State, if only the moral sentiment of Ellsworth will awake and unite and act to that end.

STATE OF MAINE.

BY THE GOVERNOR:
A PROCLAMATION.

From its earliest history the State has annually set apart a day near the close of the year, to be observed in rendering thanks for God's goodness and mercy to us as a people. Therefore, I, Henry B. Cleaves, Governor of Maine, in accordance with this relevant and honored custom, do hereby, with the advice of the Executive Council, appoint Thursday, the twentieth of the present month, as a day of

THANKSGIVING AND PRAISE TO GOD.

Let it be observed by rest from secular employments, in the gathering of kindred and family friends, in cultivating a broad spirit of humanity, and in devout recognition, in our homes and places of worship, of the innumerable blessings bestowed upon our State and her cherished and beloved institutions.

Let also the gratitude of the people find expression in generously remembering the unfortunate, in cheering the sorrowful and those in distress, that it may be a day of thankfulness in every heart and household.

Given at the Council Chamber, at Augusta, this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and nineteenth.

HENRY B. CLEAVES.

By the Governor, NICHOLAS FESSENDEN, Secretary of State.

Patronize Home Industry.

The arrest and conviction recently in Rockland of an itinerant vendor, will bring to mind the strange fascination that invariably takes possession of people when an unheard of and untried "merchant" comes to town and offers for sale at ruinous prices, goods alleged to be staple.

There is always a natural and entirely proper desire on the part of all purchasers to get the most for their money. Perhaps it has not occurred to many purchasers that there is always a corresponding desire on the part of the sellers to give the purchaser all they can, consistent with a reasonable profit. This is especially true where competition is sharp.

In a community like Ellsworth and its vicinity, dependent as it is on its internal activities, the individuals composing it are interdependent, that is, they must necessarily depend upon each other to a very large degree. Money earned within the community can ordinarily be spent to best advantage within it.

No merchant is expected to sell his goods for what he pays for them. He is entitled to a profit; that is his wage for the service he renders the purchaser. This wage should be sufficient to afford a living, and in a limited field the margin of profit must necessarily be larger than in an unlimited one. And yet it is rare that the average country merchant charges more than he is justified, by reason of his limited field, in charging.

In the long run purchasers are better off—get more for their money—by trading at home with their own people than by patronizing itinerant vendors, who are often as irresponsible as their goods are bad.

The State recognizes the right that local merchants have to protection against this irresponsible class. The Rockland case has brought out from the opinion of that city a statement of the law so succinctly that we reproduce it:

The Maine legislature, at its last session, passed a law that was very little talked about, and not many people know its provisions; but it was designed to prevent a very grave abuse, and save the people from being swindled. For many years, a class of itinerant merchants have infested the State, and proved not only a nuisance to those engaged in legitimate business, but have taken away lots of good money in exchange for goods that are worthless or at least of inferior quality.

These modern Wandering Jaws were almost always unscrupulous and untruthful, and nobody ever had to do with them without regretting it. The swindled people had no redress. Before they found that they had been inveigled into buying shoddy, or brimstone, the tramp traders would have pulled up stakes and were off out of the State.

These fellows would generally hire a vacant store for a week or fortnight and advertise a "bankrupt sale," a "damaged goods sale," or something of the sort—always something to lead people into the belief that they could buy at much lower prices than at the stores of the regular dealers.

Of course they did nothing of the sort. On the contrary, they sold goods that were dear at any price, and carried right and left. These practical crooks carried things with so high a hand that it was found necessary to do something to protect people from their operations.

The law of 1881, passed to protect the people against this kind of swindling and the merchants against the loss of trade which follows when large amounts of money are spent in a community for worthless goods, provides that every itinerant vendor who shall offer for sale any wares without state and local license, shall be punished by not exceeding $50 fine or 60 days imprisonment or both.

Each itinerant vendor shall deposit with the secretary of the State $50, and pay twenty-five dollars additional for a State license. This license is not transferable, and only authorizes one person to sell goods; such person may have a clerk or assistant, but these cannot act without him, so that no business can be done unless the man who holds the license is present. Then the vendor must go to the city clerk and get a local license.

He must furnish to this officer a sworn statement of the average quantity and value of his stock, and the license fee is fixed at the regular tax on that amount of property at rate of the last preceding tax levy. Any false statement or representation made in the application for either license is punished by a fine.

If the vendor advertises a bankrupt sale, closing out sale, damaged goods sale, or anything of the sort, he must make a sworn statement to the secretary of state, in applying for a license, all the facts relating to the reasons and character of such special sale, including a statement of the names of the persons from whom the goods were obtained, date of delivery, etc., and all details necessary to locate and identify the goods, and any false statement is made punishable.

The $50 deposit is held for sixty days after the State license is surrendered or cancelled, and every claim arising under the law shall be satisfied out of it if proven. The deposit is held subject to attachment and execution in behalf of all creditors, so that if anybody finds he has been swindled he has ample recourse to secure legal redress, by a trustee process.

The law gives ample security against the swindles and extortions of these wandering merchants, provided the people understand what the law is and what their rights are under it. We have therefore given an abstract of its leading provisions; the full text of the law may be found in chapter 250 of the public laws of 1881. The danger now is that its provisions may not be permitted to come to business in the old way, and get out, without complying with all the provisions of the law, so that the means of redress may be lost.

Of course, if a person comes with his license, having done everything in the manner prescribed by law, the presumption is that he does not belong to the class described above, and that he intends to do business on the square. But in that case, he certainly cannot compete with the regular dealers of a place, who can buy goods as cheaply as he, and are not subject to half the expense of the traveling vendor.

Therefore, if it is intended to make the law really protective, as designed, every itinerant vendor who puts in an appearance must be strictly scrutinized, and required to conform to the law in every particular.

The principle involved in this law, which the opinion so heartily approves, is the very principle involved in the protective policy as advocated by the republican party. It says to foreigners: "We don't object to your coming among us and doing business, but we insist that when you do come you shall pay for the privilege just as we are obliged to do."

But this is apart from the purpose of this article, which is to urge the members of this community to remember, when lured by however plausible a reason, that home trading is, in the long run, apt to be the cheapest and most satisfactory.

The Next Senate.

Beyond the wildest dreams of the republicans was the hope of securing the next Senate, yet the outlook now is that the overwhelming republican victory has carried a sufficient number of legislatures which elect senators this winter, to give the Senate to the victorious party.

The Senate now has thirty-seven republicans, forty-four democrats, and four populists, with one vacancy in each of the following states: Montana, Washington and Wyoming; and these three have elected republican legislatures.

No republican state legislature that chooses a senator has been lost, while New Jersey and West Virginia have been gained.

The next Senate, therefore, will probably stand forty-three republicans, forty-two democrats and four populists. The latter will probably act with the republicans on party questions.

The work of Chairman Babcock, of the republican congressional campaign committee, has aroused the admiration of all those who know anything about the management of campaigns. All the world, of course, knows of the result of his work—250 odd republican congressmen, and almost certain control of the Senate after next March—but the inside or secret work of the campaign is known to only a few prominent members of the party. They say that Mr. Babcock has proven himself one of the shrewdest directors of campaign work the party has ever had, which is high praise indeed; and already a movement is quietly on foot to have the party get the benefit of that shrewdness in 1896. Whether this will be done by keeping him at the head of the congressional committee or by transferring him to the national committee is not yet apparent.

When the sweeping nature of the republican victory is considered, the republicans have been very modest in their demonstrations of joy. For the most part they have confined themselves to quiet congratulations over the prospect which that victory gives of a permanent revival of prosperity throughout the country, now that business men have something solid upon which to base their future calculations—something which they have lacked for two years, and without which no country can enjoy a real and permanent prosperity. It is regarded as really more of a business than a political victory, and republicans are all the more proud of it on that account.

Last week we went to press with only sufficient information regarding the election on the 6th to render it certain that the republicans had gained a most decisive victory. Its completed returns dazzled the victors and dazed the vanquished. Its extent and importance will hardly be realized for weeks to come, but its effect is already beginning to be felt. A summary of the story of the greatest political revolution of this generation may be found on page 5 of this issue.

Congressman Richardson, of Ohio, a democrat who was defeated for reelection, is now in Washington trying to find a life-preserver. He gives as one of several reasons why Ohio went republican by 135,000, that the "pension policy of the administration has been most disastrous to our party in Ohio. Worthy pensioners have been cut off right and left, and it seems that special efforts have been made to humiliate them."

Important Real Estate Transaction.

George D. Cooksey, of Irvington, N. Y., a few years ago, built a handsome villa at Clement's Point, Seal Harbor, and has since spent his summers there with his family.

This fall he and associates have been purchasing various tracts of land at and near Seal Harbor. Among the tracts purchased were some lots owned or controlled by Hon. Eugene Hale, Judge L. A. Emery, E. H. Greely and H. E. Hamlin, of Ellsworth. Another large tract has been purchased of George W. Bracey, of Seal Harbor.

The purchasing syndicate will secure by these and other purchases a tract of between 600 and 1,000 acres, lying mainly in one body, with two or three miles of shore point. It is understood that the purchasers will soon begin upon a system of improvements, the building of roads, etc.

On various parts of these lots are fine building sites. It is believed that many of Mr. Cooksey's friends and acquaintances will build summer residences there in the near future.

This purchase and the improvements to be inaugurated cannot fail to be of great benefit to that section of Mt. Desert Island in particular, and to the county in general. Seal Harbor itself is beautifully located, possessing advantages as a place of summer residence in many respects superior even to Bar Harbor.

Comic Opera by Local Talent.

Ellsworth is to have an opera company. A number of musical gentlemen met at the store of E. F. Redman last Friday evening to consider the feasibility of giving an opera in this city the coming winter. After considering the probable cost of such a production, it was voted to take up the comic opera of "Priscilla, or the Pilgrim's Proxy," founded on Longfellow's quaint story of "Myles Standish's Courtship."

The club elected the following officers: Musical director, F. W. Rollins; stage manager, E. E. Parker; advertising agent, A. E. Austin; treasurer, E. F. Robinson. A chorus of thirty voices has been secured, and the cast is nearly completed. It is the intention of those having the matter in charge to commence the study at once, though the play will probably not be produced until the latter part of the winter.

As above stated, "Priscilla" is a story of Pilgrim life and love, founded upon the courtship of Myles Standish. Its scenes are laid in ancient Plymouth, and John Alden carries on his courtship over the famous Plymouth rock, where sweet Priscilla is finally won, and the treacherous Standish learns his fate.

The opera is well staged, and catchy music, humorous dialogue and pretty costumes give it a vim that is refreshing. The vein of comedy that runs through the play keeps the audience in constant good humor.

"Priscilla" is perhaps the most charming amateur performance that has been written since the days of "Pinafore."

Church Notes.

The subject of the sermon at the Methodist church next Sunday will be: "God's Care for His Work."

At the Congregational church next Sunday morning the pastor will preach on "Salvation." The lecture at the people's service in the evening will be a continuation of that of last Sunday evening. The subject will be "Citizen League." The subject will be treated along these lines: History and extent of the movement; seasons for the organization; their qualifications for their work; is such an organization desirable for Ellsworth? All, especially voters, are invited.

Judge Emery's Rulings.

Referring to the recent term of court at Auburn, the Lewiston Journal says:

"Among the attorneys at this session of court in Auburn that is now closing, no feature has been of more interest than the charges to the jury by Judge Emery. 'I have endeavored not to miss one of them,' said one of the most busy attorneys before the bar to the writer, on Thursday. 'They are models of English and the law is presented in a direct and pointed way. They are generally brief, apparently delivered off-hand and always in terms easily to be understood by any jury.'"

Here is a good story which should be added to the long list of blunders made in the course of the church service. A young clergyman started a London East-end congregation the other day by announcing, "Hymn fourteen and sevenpence half penny." In his nervousness he had confused the offering total of the previous Sunday with the hymn figures—Tid-bits.

Mothers.

"One good mother is worth a hundred school-masters," said George Herbert. Men are what their mothers make them. But if the mothers are peevish and irritable, through irregularities, "female weakness," and kindred ailments, they find no pleasure, no beauty in the care of their babies. All effort is torture. Let all such, who feel weighted to the earth with "weaknesses" peculiar to their sex, try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. They will find the little ones a delight instead of a torment.

To those about to become mothers it is a priceless boon. It lessens the pains and perils of childbirth, shortens labor and promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

Christian Endeavor.

The monthly business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Baptist church of this city was held in the church parlor on Thursday, Nov. 8.

The president, Miss Sadie E. Jordan, presided. The society was encouraged by the addition of several new members. Two were elected to active membership, while two were transferred from the associate to the active list. One was elected as an associate member, and two as honorary members.

Reports were received from committees. It was decided to keep the international convention, to be held next year in Boston, practically before the society by choosing at this early date one to be sent, at the expense of the society, as delegate to that gathering. Alden E. Farrell was selected as delegate.

After disposing of all the business there was an interesting discussion of the question: "What missionary work shall we, as a society, do, and how shall we do it?" The subject to be considered at the next meeting is: "How do you think our society may be improved?"

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

HAWK COUNTY, ss:—November 13, A. D. 1894.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION issued from the Ellsworth municipal court, docketed at Ellsworth within and against the estate of Isaac C. Carter, deceased, upon a judgment of said court rendered at the November term, A. D. 1894, which judgment bears date the 25th day of November, A. D. 1894, against Sophia Tourtellotte, now Sargent, of Ellsworth, Hancock county, Maine, and in favor of William James, of Ellsworth, Hancock county, Maine, for the sum of $325.00, with interest, and $9.97 cost of suit, with 15 cents more of said writ of execution, I have seized and taken the real estate, and real estate and all the right, title and interest which the said debtor had in and to the same on the 28th day of October, A. D. 1894, at five o'clock P. M., the time when the same was attached on the original writ, to-wit:

A certain lot or parcel of land situated in Ellsworth with the buildings thereon, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Beginning on the east side of the Bangor road at the southwest corner of land of L. M. Clement; thence east two hundred rods to land of Robert Gerry; thence south on said Gerry's line forty-four rods; thence west parallel with said E. M. Clement line to said Bangor road; thence north on said road to the place of beginning, and being the same premises conveyed to Sophia T. Tourtellotte by Dexter P. Clement and Ella F. Clement, Dec. 4, 1875, and recorded in the Bangor Registry of Deeds, Book 1887, page 533, conveyed to Dexter P. Clement by Rufus S. Clement, Dec. 4, 1875, and recorded in the Bangor Registry of Deeds, Book 1887, page 135, and on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the sheriff's office in Ellsworth, Hancock county, Maine, I shall sell at public auction the described real estate, to the highest bidder to satisfy said execution and incidental charges, unless the same is otherwise satisfied before the time fixed for said sale.

Attest:—L. F. Hooper,
Deputy Sheriff.

A RETRACTION.

NORTH SEDGWICK, November 12, 1894.

To whom it may concern:
Upon the 23rd day of October, A. D. 1894, I accused David E. Hooper, Simon D. Carter, Harold A. Young, Joseph L. Hooper, Fred C. Hooper, Alden Carter and Edwin Carter in public, of being implicated in the burning of the house of Otis Carter, at North Sedgwick. I hereby wish to acknowledge that I was hasty in making the above accusation, having at the time no ground of belief on which to base said charge. And I hereby retract the same, and extend to them an apology for having made it.

Witness:—Edward E. Chase.

THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me., Nov. 15, 1894.

AFTER THE FIGHT.

SMOKE ROLLS AWAY FROM THE POLITICAL BATTLEFIELD.

AND REVEALS THE SLAUGHTERED DEMOCRACY—TAMMANY TIGER AMONG THE SLAIN—DEMOCRATIC STRONGHOLDS CAPTURED.

The smoke and dust of the great political battle—the political revolution—have rolled away, and reveal in all its horrors (for the democracy) the battle-field, strewn with the dead and dying democrats; the great republican army—the army of the people and for the people—marches on to a more glorious victory in 1896.

And now let us calmly view the result in the country at large and in the several states in which elections were held.

UNITED STATES—The republicans will control the next house of representatives by a majority of about 140.

The republicans just fail of a clean majority in the senate, which will probably stand: republicans, forty-three; democrats, thirty-nine; populists, six. This gives the balance of power to the populists, but they will probably vote with the republicans on party questions. The last senate stood: democrats, forty-four; republicans, thirty-nine; populists, five. Democrats have lost heavily in Wisconsin, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. Tariff reform leaders Wilson, of West Virginia; Bynum, of Indiana; Springer, of Illinois, and Holman of Indiana have been defeated. Bland of Missouri is also among the lost.

It is expected that Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, will be the next speaker of the house. A notable feature of the republican tidal wave is that the democrats are left without a single Northern leader in the House.

NEW YORK CITY AND BROOKLYN—Complete returns show that New York city gave Hill the small majority of 2,970 in a total vote of 270,582. The city usually gives a democratic majority of from 50,000 to 75,000. Strong (rep.) for mayor, has a majority of 42,265. Goff (dem.) for recorder, beats Smyth by 10,037. The delegation to congress will consist of five democrats and five republicans, a gain of five republicans. The delegation to the assembly will consist of seventeen republicans and thirteen democrats, a gain of fourteen republicans. The next board of aldermen will be controlled by the republicans, for the first time in the history of the city, they having elected eighteen of the thirty members.

Brooklyn gave Morton 15,973 majority. All the congressmen-elect are republicans, a gain of five republicans. The city elects fifteen republicans and three democratic assemblymen, a gain of five republicans. The republicans carried the local elections by majorities larger than the combined vote of the democratic factions.

ALABAMA—Eight democratic congressmen have been elected by reduced pluralities, and one populist.

ARKANSAS—This state has elected a solid democratic delegation to congress, by pluralities ranging from 1,000 to 6,000. The present delegation, also democratic, was elected by pluralities ranging from 3,500 to 14,500.

CALIFORNIA—Democratic governor elected by plurality of about 3,000. This is the only Northern state which has given a democratic plurality. The republicans appear to have gained control of the legislature by a majority of ten on joint ballot.

COLORADO—The state has repudiated "Bloody Bridges" Waite and the populist state government by giving McIntyre (rep.) a plurality of 19,000. Waite's plurality in 1892 was 6,816. The republicans have a majority of sixteen on joint ballot in the legislature, and will elect a republican United States senator.

CONNECTICUT—Coffin (rep.) for governor has a plurality of 15,609. The democratic governor was elected in 1892 by a majority of 995. Every county in the state went republican.

DELAWARE—Republicans carried state, congressional and county tickets throughout, and have a majority of six on joint ballot in the legislature.

FLORIDA—Two democratic congressmen were elected, making no change.

GEORGIA—A solid democratic delegation to congress has been elected, making no change.

IDaho—The state went republican throughout, electing state ticket, one congressman and a republican legislature. A republican United States senator will be elected to succeed Shoup (rep.).

ILLINOIS—The legislature is republican by a very large majority, insuring a republican United States senator. The last legislature was democratic in both branches. A solid republican delegation has been sent to congress for the first time in the history of the state. The last delegation was a tie, eleven each. The republican state ticket received about 100,000 plurality. The nominal republican majority in Illinois is about 20,000. In 1892 Cleveland's plurality was 26,963.

INDIANA—Indiana elected a republican state treasurer by 10,000 or 50,000 plurality. The democrats elected a governor in 1892 by 6,976 plurality. A solid republican delegation was elected to congress. The delegation in the last house stood democrats eleven, republicans two.

IOWA—Republican state ticket elected by about 70,000 plurality. Last year the republican plurality was 32,210. Ten republican congressmen were elected, and the one district now represented by a democrat is claimed by the republicans.

KANSAS—The populists were routed in Kansas, Gov. Leveille being defeated for re-election by Morrill (rep.), whose majority is placed at 30,000. The republicans will have a majority of thirty-five on joint ballot in the legislature, which will elect a republican to succeed Martin (dem.) in the United States senate. Seven republicans and one populist were elected to congress. The present delegation stands: populists five, republicans three. The state voted down the proposition to grant suffrage to women.

KENTUCKY—The republicans made gains in Kentucky and elected three of the eleven congressmen, a gain of two.

LOUISIANA—Full returns from Louisiana give the democrats all of the six congressmen.

MARYLAND—Three democratic and three republican congressmen were elected, a gain of three for the republicans.

MASSACHUSETTS—The state was carried by the republicans. Greenhalge's plurality over Russell was 67,704. Boston, the stronghold of the democrats, gave Russell only 3,112 plurality. Last year it gave Russell nearly 10,000. Greenhalge's plurality in the state in that year was 35,601. Greenhalge's plurality this year is the largest that Massachusetts has given any candidate since 1874, when Grant received 74,300. Only one democratic congressman out of a total of thirteen was elected, a democratic loss of three.

MICHIGAN—Gov. Rich (rep.) is re-elected by a plurality of 100,000, nearly twice as large as the largest plurality heretofore recorded for governor in the state. A solid republican delegation was elected to congress, and apparently a solid republican legislature, which will choose two United States senators. The present delegation to congress stands: republicans, seven; democrats, five.

MINNESOTA—The republicans elected their entire state ticket with a plurality of about 50,000. The republicans will have a majority of ninety-two on the joint ballot in the legislature. The delegation to the next house is solidly republican. The present delegation stands: republicans, four; democrats, two; populist, one.

MISSISSIPPI—Mississippi elected a solid democratic delegation to congress, making no change.

MISSOURI—The republican state ticket was elected by about 5,000 plurality, and a republican majority of the legislature on joint ballot was chosen. The democrats elected a majority of the senate. No senatorship is at stake. Only three democratic congressmen were elected, a democratic loss of eleven. There was democratic revolt in every part of the state.

MONTANA—Montana went strongly republican on state, legislative and congressional tickets. The republican legislature will name two United States senators.

NEBRASKA—The fusion candidate for governor was elected by 2,352 plurality over the republicans. The republicans carried the remainder of the state ticket and have control of the legislature with a gain of two.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Republican governor elected by about 12,324; council solidly republican; legislature almost solidly republican, and two republican congressmen. It is claimed that the democrats have not elected a single county officer in the state. The normal republican majority in New Hampshire is about 3,000.

NEW JERSEY—The republican plurality is between 6,000 and 50,000 in the state. Eight republican congressmen were elected to succeed six democrats and two republicans in the present house. Both branches of the legislature, which will elect Senator McPherson's successor, are almost solidly republican. The republican majority on joint ballot is 63.

NEW YORK—The plurality of Morton (rep.) for governor over Hill is made by late returns 153,388 in a total vote of 1,183,386. The prohibition vote for governor was 12,359, the populist vote 5,202 and the socialist labor vote 8,217. The constitutional amendments were carried, and become laws Jan. 1, 1895. As all forms of gambling are abolished by it, probably horse-racing will die out except among rich gentlemen. The new apportionment, it is thought, will give the legislature to the republicans for ten years to come.

NORTH CAROLINA—The democrats have lost nearly everything in North Carolina, including the two United States senators. The populists and republicans fused and elected their state ticket by an estimated plurality of 10,000. The fusionists will have, it is estimated, a majority of twenty on joint ballot in the legislature.

NORTH DAKOTA—North Dakota has elected Allen (rep.) governor over Kinter (dem.) and Wallace (pop.) by 7,000 plurality. The republicans have carried the legislature.

OHIO—The republican plurality is estimated at 133,510. McKinley's plurality in 1893 was 83,993. The congressional delegation in the next house will stand: republicans, twenty-one; democrats, two. The delegation in the present house stands: republicans, ten; democrats, eleven.

PENNSYLVANIA—Pennsylvania rolled up a majority of 235,000 in round numbers for the republican state ticket. The new congressional delegation stands: republicans, twenty-nine; democrats, one; a democratic loss of nine seats.

RHODE ISLAND—Two republican congressmen were elected in place of democrats, by majorities of over 1,000.

SOUTH DAKOTA—The state has elected a strong republican legislature.

TENNESSEE—The Tennessee legislature, which will elect a successor of Senator Harris (dem.), is believed to be democratic on joint ballot by a small majority. The legislature of 1893 was democratic by fifty-six majority on joint ballot. Late returns indicate the election of Evans (rep.) for governor. The delegation to the next house will stand: democrats, six; republicans, four. The delegation in the present house stands: democrats, eight; republicans, two.

TEXAS—The populists caused the landslide in Texas. The democrats will not have more than eight congressmen. The populists will have four and the republicans one. The democratic majority of Texas has disappeared, and the candidates on the state ticket will be satisfied with a small figure. The legislature is probably democratic, but the populists are even taking of that.

WASHINGTON—Washington re-elected its two congressmen by increased republican majorities, and the legislature, which will elect a senator, will be republican on joint ballot by twenty-three.

WEST VIRGINIA—A solid republican delegation to congress and the state republican by popular vote for the first time in twenty-one years. Stephen B. Elkins will probably be the senator. William L. Wilson, the tariff leader, goes down in the crash.

WYOMING—Republican throughout. Will send two republican senators to Washington.

TERRITORIES—New Mexico has elected a republican legislature and has chosen T. B. Catron (rep.) delegate to congress by about 1,700 majority. The present delegate is a democrat.

Arizona has elected a republican delegate to congress by 400 plurality. The republicans probably will control the lower house of the territorial legislature by a majority of one. The present delegate to congress is a democrat, and the democrats controlled the legislature elected in 1893.

Utah has elected a republican legislature and a republican delegate to congress.

Idaho has elected a republican legislature and a republican delegate to congress.

Idaho has elected a republican legislature and a republican delegate to congress.

Idaho has elected a republican legislature and a republican delegate to congress.

PARISH MEETING.
The annual parish meeting of the Unitarian society was held in the church parlor last Wednesday evening. After the general routine of business, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. D. Hopkins; vice president, Mrs. A. F. Greely; treasurer, A. F. Burnham; clerk, A. E. Austin; soliciting committee, J. D. Hopkins, Mrs. A. M. Hopkins, Mrs. C. I. Welch, Mrs. A. F. Greely, Mrs. A. F. Burnham, pulp committee, Mrs. A. F. Greely, Mrs. A. M. Fulton.

It was voted to retain the pastors for another year, and to solicit subscriptions to meet the current expenses of the society.

COUNTY NEWS.

For additional County News see other pages.

THE AMERICAN has subscribers at 100 of the 116 post-offices in Hancock county; all the other papers in the county combined do not reach so many. THE AMERICAN is not the only paper printed in Hancock county, and has never claimed to be, but it is the only paper that can properly be called a COUNTY paper; all the rest are merely local papers. The circulation of THE AMERICAN, barring the Bar Harbor Record's summer list, is larger than that of all the other papers printed in Hancock county.

Marlboro.

A number of people here have killed their pigs.

Mathew McIntyre is having a barn built on his farm here.

Mrs. Sarah Hodgkins has gone to Gouldsboro on a visit.

Winfield Severance has moved to Lamoine on Henry Gerrish's place.

B. K. Martin has gone to Ellsworth to work in the shoe factory, and expects to move there soon.

R. W. Hodgkins is having his chambers plastered. The mason work is being done by John Austin, of Lamoine.

The drama entitled "Bread upon the Waters," was played at the school-house last Friday evening. The receipts amounted to about $15.

The fall term of school closed two weeks ago. It was taught by Miss Lena McFarland, of North Hancock. The winter term commenced to-day taught by Eben Hodgkins.

As THE AMERICAN stated that someone had picked some late strawberries, it may be mentioned that J. H. Douglass picked blueberries enough for his family for supper, Oct. 31.

Nov. 6.

Several deer have been killed by our hunters since the snow came.

The Bible Day concert which was to have been given last Sunday, was postponed one week on account of the death of Mrs. Stinson, as four of her daughters are members of the school.

Two of our young ladies, Maud Crabtree and Inez Morgan, are becoming quite noted pedestrians. They walked seven miles to visit Emily Morgan, who is teaching at Rich's corner, one day this fall, and after but a few hours rest, walked back, making a walk of fourteen miles in less than a day.

It is with sadness we record the death of Mrs. Rose Stinson after a long and severe suffering. Her husband, Philip Stinson and his five daughters, the eldest but fourteen, and the youngest ten days, have the heart-felt sympathy of the entire community. The ranks of the active members of our Christian Endeavor are broken for the first time by death in the four years of our existence, and we deeply feel our loss. Mrs. Haskell, of Sargentville, mother of Mrs. Stinson, Mrs. Stover, sister of the same, also from the same place, and Mrs. Dority, of Brooklin, another sister, have been here several days doing all loving hearts could do for her and the family.

Nov. 12.

South Surry.

C. H. Curtis and wife, of East Bluehill, were in town Sunday.

Lowell Young and son, of Hall Quarry, were here over Sunday.

H. A. Bonsey and wife, and Lettie E. Green are home from Sound.

E. M. Cunningham, wife and family, are home from Hall Quarry for the winter.

Gancelo Herrick and wife, of South Bluehill, were at Delmon Mann's last week.

Peleg Curtis and Mrs. Nancy Parker, of Brooklin, have been visiting their father, Abijah S. Curtis.

J. M. Hill and wife, of Brooklin, were the guests of Mrs. Hill's brother, Jeremiah Young, last week.

W. L. Thomas has built an extension on his ell for a hot-house. He is also building a new stable and a large hen-house.

J. Cunningham has built a piazza on his residence. He is also painting his house on the outside, and finishing and remodeling the inside.

Annie Blake has returned to West Brookville to do some dressmaking and to visit her sister.

Ernest Gray, of Harborside, is employed on the steamer "Golden Rod" which runs between Belfast and Bangor.

Reddington Gray, of the Creek, I am told, is cook on the steamer "Viking" which runs between Belfast and Castine.

Ernest Gray, formerly of Weir Cove, but now of Morrill, is employed on the steamer "Sedgwick" between Bangor and Bar Harbor.

John Dyer, who was reported lost at Swan's Island, is safe. His friends have received several letters telling of his safety.

which loaded granite at Sargentville a week ago is in Buck's Harbor, having gone there for harbor.

Capt. Herbert Black of the schooner "Henry Chase" was safe in Buck's Harbor lately with his family, although he was reported sunk with his schooner.

The dwelling of C. H. Blake caught fire a few days ago in the gale, but was seen in time to prevent a conflagration, though the fire being on the roof the chambers were filling with smoke, and would have been soon beyond control.

Today we have a blinding, drifting snow storm. It came on last night and has grown worse and colder. We have not before this fall had a particle of ice or snow, and the big drifts piling around us are chilling and killing. Until now summer flowers have bloomed quite freely out of doors. The correspondent of the Bangor Daily News, a short time ago, said someone here was eating "freshly-picked blueberry pies." I don't believe they will pick any more after this storm.

The "Castine" left Belfast at usual hour on Saturday, but before reaching Turtle Head found it so rough that the captain thought best to connect with the "Sedgwick" at Castine instead of going to Ryder's Cove as usual. Both boats were so heavily freighted that the "Sedgwick" was obliged to leave a part of her cargo at Castine. As the gale increased both boats crossed the river to the summer wharf on the Cape Rosier side and lay there the rest of the day. At night, as the wind showed indications of coming around north again, the "Castine" returned to a spare dock at Castine where she lay till 5.30 Sunday morning, when she came on her way with fine weather, and called at Blake's Point at 6.30. The "Sedgwick" went in the night to Ryder's Cove.

Nov. 6.

South Hancock.

Mrs. Maria Foss, one of the aged ladies in this place, is quite ill.

There was a dance and supper in the town hall last Friday evening.

Capt. Henry L. Wooster, of East Sullivan, was here recently calling upon old friends.

Mrs. Nancy Wooster left last week, for Worcester, Mass., where she spends the winters.

Schools commenced Monday, Nov. 5, in this vicinity, with the following teachers: John Shute, of West Hancock, at the Hancock Point school; Walter Clark at the Corner school; Fred I. Phillips at the Falls school. Mr. Phillips taught a very successful term in the same place last winter.

Rev. G. W. Avery preached here Nov. 11. His text was from II Samuel 20: 9, "Are you in health my brother?" He spoke of one's health-how it could be impaired by neglect, and compared it to the soul's salvation; how sin could be added by degrees until it was almost past redemption.

Mrs. William H. Leland is quite ill.

Miss Lizzie S. Haynes, who has been in failing health for some time, is now somewhat better.

W. H. Dolliver, wife and child, of Bar Harbor, were here recently on a flying visit to relatives.

Mrs. Richmond Murch has gone to West Eden to attend Mrs. W. R. Haynes, who is an invalid.

Mrs. J. W. Saunders has gone to Somerville to care for her niece, Mrs. W. H. Brown, who is ill.

Will W. Hopkins and wife are receiving the congratulations of their many friends. It is a boy.

Ira C. Getchel has arrived home from Camden, where he has been employed in a hotel several weeks.

Mrs. David Marshall has gone to Lamoine in attendance on her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. Googins, who is ill.

Frank Dunbar and wife are congratulated by their many friends on becoming the happy parents of a fine baby boy, their first born.

Nathan Fennelly, wife and children, of Northeast Harbor, were in town a few days last week on a visit to Mrs. Fennelly's uncle, Capt. Melvin D. Haynes.

The snow storm of last Tuesday was the most severe for so early in the season remembered by the oldest person in this vicinity. The hunters report the snow fifteen inches deep in the woods.

The many friends of Mrs. Alanson Googins, of East Lamoine, Mrs. Wesley R. Haynes, of West Eden, and Mrs. William H. Brown, of Somerville, regret to learn of their serious illness. They are respected former residents of this place.

There is a farmer in this place that has several bushels of potatoes in the ground, and another who has fifty bushels of vegetables ungathered. The weather for several days this week looked encouraging for them to have the privilege of finishing their harvesting in the long and sunny days of next spring.

Harry W. Leland met with quite a severe accident on Monday night of this week. He was cutting a pumpkin when his knife glanced, cutting an artery in his wrist and causing the blood to flow profusely. The flow of blood was temporarily stopped, until the arrival of Dr. Hagerthy, who rendered all necessary aid.

Tuesday afternoon of last week twenty young ladies of this town, assembled at the home of Mrs. John W. Saunders for the purpose of organizing a society of King's Daughters. Twenty-four ladies have joined the society. Mrs. J. W. Saunders has been chosen president; Mrs. Charles H. Copp, vice-president; Mrs. L. S. Hopkins, treasurer; Miss Mabel A. Hopkins, secretary. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Francis E. Hopkins, on Wednesday, Nov. 28.

Bar Harbor.

Winter is coming and with it plenty of work; everybody seems busy.

George Wescott has built two neat cottages on Kennebec Place. One is already sold.

Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Paine have moved their millinery goods from Main street to Cottage street.

Mumps are prevalent. Many swelled faces, both of adults and children, are seen on the streets.

Last evening, Mr. Freeman, of the Congregational church, gave a lecture on "The Peculiarities of Bar Harbor." It is too bad that Bar Harbor is to lose such an able speaker and earnest worker. Mr. Freeman tendered his resignation a few weeks ago, and last week the church accepted it. The resignation takes effect Nov. 20.

Nov. 12.

Hancock.

During his vacation John Shute is teaching school in town.

R. L. Stratton and wife are again with us. Mr. Stratton is at present a "traveling man."

Joseph Crabtree and daughter, Mrs. W. S. Stratton, of Portland, recently made a short visit here.

Corner school began last week under the tuition of W. P. Clark, who has so successfully taught in town for several winters.

The R. V. W. S. will provide a New England supper to be served after the presentation of "A King's Daughter" upon the evening of Nov. 29.

Capt. O. W. Foss has made extensive improvements upon his house, chief among which are an excellent bath room, and hot and cold water pipes conveying water to all parts of the house.

Nov. 12.

WHO CAN BEAT IT?

A correspondent of THE AMERICAN sends the following list of produce raised on two and one-half acres by J. T. Goodwin, of this place. The list is noteworthy from the fact that Mr. Goodwin is eighty-one years old, and did all the work necessary to raise such an excellent crop from that amount of land, with the exception of team work during the spring and haying seasons. Can any younger men of this vicinity make as good a showing?

The AMERICAN correspondent vouches for the correctness of the list:

Three tons of hay, sixty bushels of apples, two bushels of grapes, ten bushels of turnips, four bushels of carrots, ten bushels of tomatoes, one hundred heads of cabbage, forty bushels of potatoes, four bushels of beans, eight bushels of onions, five bushels of beets, one bushel of parsnips, one bushel of dry peas, corn and fodder valued at seven dollars, produce sold amounting to eight dollars; also cucumbers, pumpkins, squashes, etc.

In the above list the vegetables eaten during the summer by two, and part of the time of three families, are not taken into account.

A new lodge of Good Templars was instituted here Nov. 12, by Mrs. H. M. C. Estes, with thirty-one charter members.

There will no doubt be a fourth lodge in the town of Eden before Mrs. Estes leaves this vicinity—another in Eden.

Following are the names of new officers: L. D. E. S. Hamor; P. C. T. Lottie Knowles; C. T. J. E. Hamor; V. T. Mrs. D. W. McKay; S. J. T. Alice T. Kittredge; chaplain, Mabel Rich; secretary, Luella M. Sargent; F. S. Raymond Kittredge; treasurer, Chester Rich; M. William F. Higgins; G. Mary Knowles; S. Elmer E. Sargent; A. S. Lella J. Knowles; D. M. Helen Hamor. This lodge takes the name of "Granite," and will meet on Friday evenings. Mrs. Estes goes to Mt. Desert, Southwest Harbor and Tremont. She reports the kindest reception everywhere.

A juvenile temple was instituted Nov. 12 by Mrs. Estes with twenty members; name, "Granite." Superintendent, Miss Alice T. Kittredge; supervisory committee, Leonard O. Packard, Mrs. Helen M. Hamor, Chester Rich.

There will be a dance and supper at the town hall Thanksgiving night, under the auspices of the Watham sewing circle. Music by Wilson.

Judge Emery on Divorce.

In the supreme court at Auburn Judge Emery has been trying to convince attorneys that he will not cut marital knots without some consideration and good cause.

"I don't propose to be humbugged," he said to the attorneys Friday. "You can't expect much from me on the ground of failure to support. You better prove desertion."

The court was no false prophet. Only one attorney replied on that clause, and he didn't get his client untied. During the proceedings the judge complained that they didn't have witnesses enough.

"I see you have gotten into the habit of bringing only one witness," he remarked to the assemblage of lawyers. "Well," said one, "different judges differ. We have usually had two." "Well," said Judge Emery, "put me down for three."

Pastoral Conference.

The semi-annual conference of the pastors of the Hancock Baptist association, appointed for Wednesday, Nov. 7, brought together in Ellsworth, Pastors Bosworth, Mason and Morse and Lay Visitor Rice, who is pastor of all the pastorless churches.

Reports were received from eleven of the churches that are served by pastors, and word came from a number of other churches.

After being together for more than three hours in the afternoon and for about the same length of time in the evening, it was decided that there were matters of interest to the churches which made it best to seek to get all the pastors together at an early date, and the conference adjourned to meet in the parlor of the Ellsworth Baptist church on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 1 p. m.

The adjourned meeting of the pastors was held Tuesday evening. The attendance was no larger than on the previous evening, the disagreeable weather interfering. The pastors present were Messrs. Mason, of Ellsworth; Morse, of Franklin, White, of Bar Harbor and Whitten, of Swan's Island.

Business of interest to the Baptist churches in the county was discussed. It was decided that as the association was so large, covering the entire county, it would be advantageous to divide the association into two districts, and this will be done. A quarterly conference will be held at Swan's Island the latter part of this month, and at East Bluehill about the middle of December.

"Why don't you get a boy to keep your desk in order?" inquired the caller. "It looks awfully littered up." "I keep it this way," said the man at the desk. "To show that I'm always busy." "But why—oh, I see! Good day!"—Chicago Tribune.

On the Quay of the Louvre: "You told me the parrot you sold me the other day could repeat everything it heard. Rubbish! Preach to it as I will, it remains dumb as a fish." "It is quite true I told you it would repeat everything it heard, but then it hears nothing; it is as deaf as a post."—Le Petit Journal pour Rire.

INSECTS. IN SEX.

Both pronounced the same, but in meaning they are different. That is the way with bargains. Nearly every advertisement announces bargains, but in those announcements the word bargains has a great difference in meaning. Our bargains mean a reduction of 25 per cent. on which means a quarter saved out of every dollar. By trading with us you can give all those quarters to your wife for pin money. Then she will be happy, you will be happy, and we will be happy. Yours in trade,

FREDERICK A. COOMBS.

The RIGHT GOODS, At the RIGHT PRICES, At the RIGHT TIME—

This is what

M. GALLERT OFFERS.

WE have never sold as many LADIES', MISSES' and CHILDREN'S OUTSIDE GARMENTS as we have so far this season. The goods must be right and the prices right, otherwise we couldn't have done it.

Special offer of 50 Ladies' Coats, last season's goods, at $3.00.

This season's Coats and Capes from $5.00 to 25.00.

Fur Capes, $5.00 to 50.00.

Dress Goods, Silks and Velvets.

WE have an elegant line in this department, as we have just received 50 more of those fashionable French Novelty Dress Patterns which caused so much excitement among our patrons last month. If you want a fashionable, tasty dress in the latest style, look ours over before you purchase.

Blankets.

250 PAIRS of Blankets at about one-half last year's prices. You can buy a pair of blankets of us in either white or colored at 50 cents per pair; better grades up to $5.50.

Good Carpets.

ANY amount of difference in Carpets in the wear, in the style, in the price. A doubtful carpet never gains foothold with us. As to price, we are always as low as, often a shade lower than, others.

Ladies', Men's, Boys', Misses' and Children's

Winter Underwear and Hosiery.

WE quote prices on good and reliable goods, and not trash.

Bargain No. 1.—100 doz. Ladies' Jersey Pants and Vests at 25 cents. We match these with any sold at 37 1/2 cents elsewhere.

Bargain No. 2.—100 doz. Ladies' Jersey Pants and Vests at 37 1/2 cents. You can buy the same elsewhere at 50 cents.

Bargain No. 3.—250 doz. of Boys', Misses' and Children's Pants and Vests, in white or colored, at one cent per line. A large line of Underwear for men, from 50 cents to $2.50.

Try our Hosiery, especially for children, as we have the best wearing goods in the market. Hosiery of all kinds, from 10 cents to $2.00 per pair.

Kid Gloves.

ON account of dampness getting in some of our kid gloves, some of them got slightly spotted, so we offer them at 50 cents per pair. The wearing qualities in them are just as good as ever, and after two or three times' wear the spots will largely disappear and the gloves look as well as any. If you want to save more than one-half in the price, buy from this lot as long as they last.

We offer bargains daily in all the departments. Our goods are reliable, as we never buy old or shopworn goods.

As the holidays are approaching, we renew our offer of a Crayon Portrait free of charge to those buying ten dollars' worth of goods. These Portraits have been highly satisfactory to those who availed themselves of the opportunity last year. Many of them wanted us to renew that offer, which we do. If you have a relative or friend who want a Crayon Portrait of, this is your chance to get one at no expense to you with the exception of the actual cost of the frame.
